WASHINGTON, D.C. – The ADAP Advocacy Association – in collaboration with the Community Access National Network, Community Education Group, HealthHIV and Legacy Health Endowment – today launched an online survey on Covid-19 for people living with HIV/AIDS. The groups are encouraging HIV-positive individuals residing in the United States to complete the brief survey, regardless if they tested positive for Covid-19.

“It is unknown how many people living with HIV have tested positive for Covid-19 in the United States, and our survey aims to gain a greater perspective on this issue,” said Brandon M. Macsata, CEO of the ADAP Advocacy. “We are interested to learn more about how the coronavirus is impacting them.”

The survey is available at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/KCWRSBT>.
