ADAP Advocacy Honors World AIDS Day 2024 with a “Light for Hope”

World AIDS Day, designated on 1 December every year since 1988

For Immediate Release:
December 1, 2024

WASHINGTON, D.C. – ADAP Advocacy today, on World AIDS Day, honored the lives lost to the epidemic by asking its supporters to ignite candles, which represent the light of life extinguished when a person dies. It is estimated over 22 million souls have been lost since 1981. The candles’ flames not only embody the collective hope for the future, but they also remember loved ones, neighbors, and colleagues lost to it.

Earlier this year, ADAP Advocacy unveiled a limited edition, commemorative "Light for Hope" candle for World AIDS Day 2024. MoonAmor Candle Co. was commissioned to design the candle, which embodies the solidarity of the people fighting to end the HIV/AIDS epidemic, as well as remembering those lost to it. On December 1st, ADAP Advocacy urges supporters in the United States to light the commemorative candles at 7:00 p.m. ET.
